

October 26, 2011

Let's face it: Halloween in the city can be a madhouse, albeit a fun, costumed madhouse. To help narrow your party choices this year, we've found something for every type of reveler.

(AMNY/EATER.COM)

EATER

This article first appeared on Eater.com.

Crawling around

For those who'd rather barhop than stay put, a massive Halloween Pub Crawl is the ticket. Three crawls are taking place — on Friday, Saturday and Halloween Monday — and each will snake through more than 70 bars in Manhattan. Two-dollar drafts and other drink specials are available along the route.

($15-$35, Friday, Saturday and Monday, pubcrawls.com for meet-up info)