

March 13, 2013

St. Patrick's Day Guide: Pub Crawls, Parties, Green Food

Though St. Patrick's Day is not a legal holiday in the United States, it might as well be. After all, everyone is Irish on St. Paddy's Day, and there are few professions that allow for drinking a beer and working at the same time.

Luckily, the holiday, celebrated March 17 in honor of Saint Patrick, the most recognized patron saint of Ireland, falls on a Sunday this year, which means there are a host of celebrations all weekend.

Whether you like green pancakes, corned-beef tacos, or boatloads of Guinness, break out the green and celebrate! 'Sláinte!'

Saint Paddy's Day Pub Crawl

If you can't decide which pub you'd like to celebrate in, why not join this pub crawl? Pubcrawls.com is hosting crawls all weekend. Start at Five Bar & Lounge or Rokbar and enjoy drink specials at every bar you visit. Tickets are $20 per person, but Voice Daily Deals is offering half-priced tickets for a limited time only.