

March 12, 2012

Local Events for the Foodie in You: Week of March 12th!

Good morning all. Happy Monday! I'm really not feeling very enthusiastic. There's something very wrong with getting up, taking the pup out for his walk and the moon still lighting up the dark sky. It felt like I had gotten up in the middle of the night and every clock was playing a really sick joke on me! Not loving this "Spring forward" loss of an hour. I did have a productive weekend though. I've got some exciting things coming up and once I can, I'll let all of you in on the secret. I'm going to need your help! 😊

If you forgot, this Saturday is St. Patty's Day. We take this day pretty serious in NYC. So be prepared for Irish themed festivities through out the week and of course the 3-day bar crawl to finish it out. It's sure to be a good time!

Mar 17 - Green Breakfast of Champions: St. Patrick's Day Kegs & Eggs at SideBar, 118 E. 15th St. (@ Irving Pl) at 8am. Who needs green eggs and ham when you can get breakfast for a CHAMPION? A champion drinker, that is. Roll out of bed and head to either SideBar or Village Pourhouse to fill your stomach on a St. Patty's Day buffet! That meal will save your life on this infamous alcohol-ridden holiday so don't wait to get tickets for as low as $20. That pays for admission, breakfast buffet and drink specials! Click here for more info and tix.